

The FC Public Media Chronicle: September 2026

FC PUBLIC MEDIA'S COMMUNITY CONTRIBUTIONS

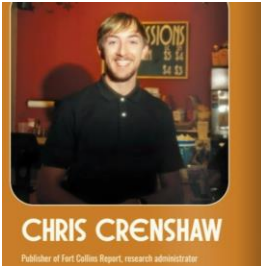

Hello FC Public Media Community. August flew by and FCPM stayed busy. New member Cody Boterman (pictured above) used our studio green screen and Black Magic Cameras to film one of his comedic skits. Scroll down to learn what else happened last month.

FC Public Records Comic Con. Last month FC Public Media spent three jam packed days recording Fort Collins Comic Con at the Senior Center. Vice President James Sims (pictured left) was one of the volunteers who filmed the convention. We had a blast interacting with the panels and cosplayers, and we look forward to going again next year.

Getting Involved A lot of you have asked about volunteering at FCPM. One of the best ways to get started is to contact our outreach coordinator Morey Hurbin (pictured right). Morey often film and photographs local events like Comic Con. If you're interested in joining Morey on a shoot, email him at morey@fcpublicmedia.org.

Chris Crenshaw is one of 30 under 30 NOCO Style featured Chris Crenshaw in their 30 under 30. Chris is our newest board director and head of the Fort Collins Report (partnered with FCPM). The article in NOCO Style has galvanized interest in Chris's project and will hopefully increase further public engagement. Now more than ever, communities like Northern Colorado need local journalism to give citizens a voice.

Northern Colorado Community Voices

Speaking of public voices, I recently met with David Roy, longtime Fort Collins resident and former city council member. David has founded Northern Colorado Community Voices, a group dedicated to strengthening local democracy and empowering public participation. The group's goal is to create a forum for community members to collaborate, share ideas, solve problems, and create accountability.

Northern Colorado Community Voices is currently seeking board members. If you're interested in joining, their next meeting is on September 16th from 7p-9p at the CSU Lory Student Center, Room 300.

Inclusivity and Anti-Harassment Policy

While we're on the topic of open forums, I want to reiterate FC Public Media's mission to the city of Fort Collins.

FCPM is a public platform and digital makerspace for Northern Colorado's community members. We serve Fort Collins's citizens regardless of gender identity, ethnicity, race, age, sexual orientation, religion, socioeconomic status, physical or mental ability, political perspective, or any other diverse characteristic. Irrespective of our own opinions and beliefs we welcome the various viewpoints of the community.

However, we have zero tolerance for any form of harassment: verbal, physical, or otherwise. If you feel harassed or uncomfortable because of a FCPM member or board director, please contact me at president@fcpublicmedia.org. I am also in the studio every Friday from 3:30p-5:30p if you would like to talk in person.

Our next board meeting is on Wednesday September 9, 2026 5:30p-7:30p in the Center for Creativity's White Pine Room. All FCPM and community members are welcome to attend.
